

THREE LITTLE LETTERS

It's the start of a thousand journeys
Like a melody that starts a song
The eyes that open wide to see the walk, the run, the ride
The sunset red that says it's right, not wrong

When you know that doubt is far behind you
And the voices that hold you back ... fade away

Three little letters, three precious grains of sand
Three little letters, I hope you understand
Now it's a long way from never, a new place to stand
Three little letters, it's in your hand

One day you'll look and see the beginning
A footstep in the sand, a rising sun
And the voice within that said begin it told you now or never
Be the one who chased a dream before it's begun

And if life's a stage then you're the only player
And the spotlight man who's waiting for your song
And you're the one who said I can, I am the one who had the plan
To hear my heart sing this is right, where I belong

It's when you know that doubt is far behind you
And a thousand shining streetlights lead the way

Three little letters, three precious grains of sand
Three little letters, I hope you understand
Now it's a long way from never, a new place to stand
Three little letters, it's in your hand
Now it's a long way from never, a new place to stand
Three little letters, it's in your hand
Yes you can
